

Abstract of the Disclosure

A self-aligned contact structure and a method of forming the same include selected neighboring gate electrodes with adjacent sidewalls that are configured to angle toward each other. The angled surfaces of the gate electrodes can be 5 protected using a liner layer that can extend the length of the contact window to define the sidewalls of the contact window.